ECIDA Executive VP John Cappellino is tapped for new role

Buffalo, NY— The Erie County Industrial Development Agency Board of Directors voted unanimously Wednesday, April 22 to appoint John Cappellino as the agency's new President/CEO, following the April 10 departure of previous President/CEO Steve Weathers. Cappellino has served at the agency for over 23 years, and for the past 12 years as Executive Vice President/COO.

County Executive Mark C. Poloncarz led the motion to nominate Cappellino, praising his years of service with the ECIDA.

"I think we all agree the right candidate is already in-house," said Poloncarz. "Someone who understands the work that we're doing here because he's been doing it. He is well-respected by his peers including the individuals at the ECIDA," the County Executive added.

City of Buffalo Mayor Byron W. Brown seconded the motion.

"John brings a wealth of experience to this position. He's been with the ECIDA for over 24 years now. He is very well -respected in the economic development community—and throughout the community. I know that he has worked very well with the City's economic development staff, our Commissioner Brendan Mehaffy and Director of Economic Development Rebecca Gandour," said Mayor Brown.

After the unanimous roll call vote in favor of Cappellino's nomination, ECIDA Board Chair Brenda McDuffie congratulated Cappellino on the appointment.

"We all know it is the right thing at the right time for you to be here in this position to take us forward into the future," McDuffie said.
